

Job titleComputer Forensic Analyst

Salary based on experience

Key responsibilities

The successful candidate will actively conduct Casework. This will include:

- Case management and Forensic Analysis of Computer based equipment and Mobile Phones
- Technical research and development
- Operational responsibility for securing and preservation of digital evidence
- Procedure and documentation development
- Process, Training and Quality development

Skills and experience required

Any prospective candidate must have the following qualifications:

- At least 2 years Casework experience
- Excellent understanding of IT Technology
- Current Experience with Encase, FTK and other Standard Tools
- Excellent report writing skills
- Fully conversant with the Digital Forensic Process and current ACPO Guidelines
- Full UK driving license

The following personality traits are essential:

- Excellent communicator
- Enthusiastic, hard working and flexible
- Accurate, methodical and precise
- Ability to work as part of a team or independently

Benefits

- Opportunity to progress in an expanding company
- Continued Professional Development Training
- Competitive Holiday Package
- Private Health Care

Security Clearance

Due to the nature of the role applicants will be required to be security vetted, therefore applicants must be currently resident in the UK and have been for at least 3 years

How to apply

Please apply in writing including a current CV and covering letter, detailing what you can bring to Disklabs if given this unique opportunity to:

Matthew Jones
Disklabs
Units 6/7 Mercian Park
Felspar Road
Amington Industrial Estate
Tamworth
Staffs
B77 4DP